

WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT FUSEON DOORS?

Fuseon doors break the constraints of traditionally constructed doors and allow unprecedented design freedom with a palette of different timber and metal finishes, precision fitted using state of the art CNC machining technology. The range can be constructed using a wide selection of timber veneers and metallic finishes for different architectural effects.

The standard veneer options are:

Surian Cedar

European Ash

New Guinea Rosewood

African Wenge

Wenge Finesline

Golden Teak

More than 50 other timber species can be sourced for particular applications or effects. Similarly, although the standard metallic inserts are brushed silver, other options are possible in copper, gold and bronze. The metallic finishes can also be substituted with a solid colour range of over 20 different hues from every spectrum of the rainbow. Our unique glazing surround frames are made from 304 stainless steel that has been precision fabricated and polished to give a sharp seamless border to any variety of 6.38mm laminated glass chosen.

The Fuseon range of doors was designed and is manufactured exclusively in Australia by The Woodworkers Company.

WHAT IS THE DURABILITY OF THE DOOR?

Unlike Woodworkers traditional joinery range of doors which are manufactured from natural timber components, the fuseon range is engineered from laminated timber and veneered to produce a blockboard flush door that is then over-routed for metal inserts. Engineered flush doors have been used successfully for more than 50 years and comprise the majority of doors sold in Australia by the major manufacturers Hume and Corinthian. Because flush doors are glued together, their life span may not be as long as traditional jointed doors and they are therefore recommended only for protected external or internal applications. Fuseon doors have a 2 year external warranty and a 5 year internal warranty. When well maintained and properly finished they will usually give decades of service but this lifespan will reduce according to the level of exposure and thoroughness of the original and subsequent paint coatings. The metallic inserts are warranted against delamination and comprise a sandwich panel of synthetic polyethylene with a 0.3mm metal facing protected by a polyester coating. Metal panels can be scratched and dented from rough handling and care needs to be exercised.

IS THE DESIGN ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DOOR?

No. As standard, metallic inserts are only installed on the external face of each door. Should the pattern be required on both sides then additional cost is involved.

WHAT SIZES ARE AVAILABLE?

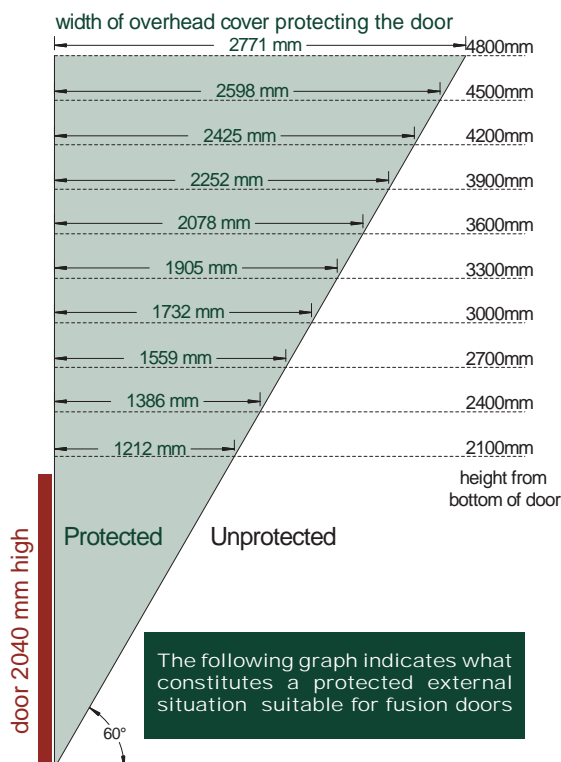

Fuseon doors can be manufactured in any size up to 2400mm high and 1200mm wide. Standard doors are 40mm thick but 35mm can be fabricated to order. Woodworkers carries Surian Cedar blanks for standard 2040 x 820 x 40, 2340 x 820 x 40, 2040 x 1200 x 40 doors which can be machined to any design on shorter lead times. Fuseon doors are suitable for hinged, pivoted or bifolding applications.

DO THEY COME PRE-FINISHED?

Standard prices do not include paint finishes, although it is usually preferable to have the doors factory sprayed before routing metallic finishes so that crisp edges are achieved. The surcharge to pre-finish joinery covers Sikkens HLS primer and top coats of Sikkens Filter 7 so that only a single finish coat or touch up is required by your painter on site after installation to remove any surface blemishes or minor scratches. Any special finishes, stains or colours can also be quoted for particular applications on request.

CAN I CUSTOMISE DESIGNS?

Yes. Obviously altering any design will incur a programming change to amend the computer controlled machining paths but almost any design can be altered to achieve a unique result. Corporate logos, for example, can be machined into doors, or different metal or timber veneer combinations can be explored.
